DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 1-5,8-14,17-22,25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Karg in view of Pickett et al. Karg discloses the basic claimed chipper except for the use of a biased outlet chute end and an electric motor. Lack of these items results in jam problems. Pickett et al solves these problems by showing similar apparatus including the use of spring biased chute 21 and electric motor 14. In order to prevent jam problems, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Karg by providing a biased chute and an electric motor, taught to be desirable by Pickett et al. The remaining limitations would have been obvious design choices only since they solve no stated problems. For example, 'approximately 60 rpm' is held to be equivalent to Karg's '50 rpm' since no problem is solved by having a rpm of exactly 60.

Claims 6,15,23,26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Karg in view of Pickett et al as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Hinsey et al. In case of a jam, Karg does not teach the use of a reversible motor to relieve the jam. Hinsey et al solves this problem by disclosing similar apparatus including the use of a reversible motor. In order to provide for jam relief, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Karg by using a reversible motor, taught to be desirable by Hinsey et al.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8/25/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Pickett et al was cited to show the use of a spring biased chute. The use of this type of chute allows for yielding of a chute wall. This is the teaching being used to modify Karg i.e. whether the chute of Pickett et al is an inlet chute or an outlet chute does not prevent the concept of a spring biased chute from being used to modify Pickett et al. It is noted that the Hinsey et al reference has not been argued against by applicants.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
